OPEN CALL

Applications for IARR Membership are invited from National or Regional Associations.

The IARR is an independent organization of radiation research societies which operates at the international level. Its principal aim, as laid down in the 1974 Constitution, is to advance radiation research in the fields of physics, chemistry, biology and medicine. In 2024, the field of epidemiology was added to this.

One of the aims of IARR is to foster and maintain the scientific co-operation and communication between national and regional societies, groups and individual scientists. Our current membership comprises 14 Associations representing approx. 2800 members in total:

Association for Radiation Research (ARR) founding member
European Radiation Research Society (ERRS) founding member
Japanese Association for Radiation Research (JARR) founding member
Radiation Research Society (RRS) founding member
Dutch Society for Radiobiology (NVRB) joined 1965
Polish Radiation Research Society (PRRS) joined 1970
German Radiation Research Societies (now DeGBS and DGDR) joined 1974
Italian Society for Radiation Research (SIRR) joined 1983
China Committee for Radiation Research (CCRR) joined 1987
Australian Institute of Nuclear Science and Engineering (AINSE) joined 1989
Irish Radiation Research Society (IRRS) joined 1993
South African Radiobiological Society (SARS) joined 1993
Asian Association for Radiation Research (AARR) joined 2010
French Society of Radiation Biology (SFBR) joined 2025
International Union of Radioecology (IUR) joined 2025

Applications are welcomed from national or regional Associations to join the IARR to enhance and build our global community of radiation research workers. Benefits include opportunities to secure small meeting support, discounted ICRR registrations for your Associations membership and, ability to bid to host future ICRRs.

INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR RADIATION RESEARCH

To apply, the governing body of the national or regional Association is requested to submit documentation to the Secretary-Treasurer for review by the IARR Council. Applications should include a copy of the Constitution and/or Bylaws governing your Association, together with supporting information on its history, activities and membership. In considering applications for membership of the IARR, Council is required to be satisfied that the scope of interest of the Association applying is appropriate for membership and that it can demonstrate adequate support and representation of their membership.

Please complete the online application form <https://forms.office.com/e/R7J78L1M0C> and submit this together with all requested documentation to: Fiona Lyng, Secretary-Treasurer IARR at fiona.lyng@tudublin.ie.
